

SOCIETY

WEEK by week one realizes that away out here in Honolulu we are getting closer and closer to the war. Last year at this time there was hardly a night that the Country Club was not the scene of a party for the younger set, while the days were just one picnic after another, with many a jolly week-end house party to finish up with. All of the islanders away at Eastern schools were back for their vacation, in most cases bringing a visitor with them. This year most of the boys are in training camps. A few of them have already gone to far-off war zones of France, where they are doing their bit, and that right well. And as soon as our camp at Schofield stars, more faces will be missed.

And the girls are helping, too. Nearly everyone has taken a first-aid course, or one of kindred nature, to be the better equipped when their call comes. It is a time when every little sacrifice counts, but it would be too much to expect that all social activity should cease. The horrors and suffering of the present war are all too familiar, and a respite, however trivial, cannot be denied.

One can hardly tell when one's dancing partner or dinner guest will be called away. As yet no real organized efforts have been tried out by the youngsters. In California already, the girls have taken to aviation clubs. Why can't we have one here? All our Red Cross work has been in the hands of the elder women, generally ones who have ties at home which prevent their giving the amount of time which is really demanded for the work. We have had our tag and flag days, but isn't there something new along this line? On Registration Day the girls turned out gladly and did all that they could. Even if the work does not turn out just as was expected, a feeling of satisfaction exists for the endeavor, time and thought given to it.

MRS. HOLLOWAY'S POI SUPPER

Mrs. C. S. Holloway entertained a number of the younger set at a poi supper on Wednesday evening, honoring the Misses Helen, Margaret and Katherine Jones and the Misses Elizabeth and Phoebe Carter. The table was decorated in typical Hawaiian style and the delicious Hawaiian food was thoroughly enjoyed.

Among those in the party were the Misses Helen, Margaret and Katherine Jones, and Misses Elizabeth and Phoebe Carter, the honor guests; Miss Ruth Soper, Miss Pauline Schaefer, Miss Eame Damon, Miss Hilda von Holt, Miss Esther Prager, Miss Heather Damon, Miss Wilhelmina Tenney, Miss Ella Wight, Messrs. Robert Purvis, Francis Brown, Geo. Brown, Carl Schaefer, Herman von Holt, Robert Menary, Ronald von Holt, Bob White, Douglas Damon, Vernon Tenney, Cyril Damon, Carter, Richards, Cassidy and others.
